THE SCIFI MOVIE TRAILERS OF 1950 - 1959

Hello and Welcome to Uncle Bud's Golden Age of Science Fiction Movie Trailers - North American Edition. Enclosed in this box is an 8 gigabyte usb flash drive in the shape of a miniature gold bar. Golden Age... gold bar... get it?

Stored on this flash drive is, while not an exhaustive collection, it is definitely a definitive collection of science fiction movie trailers from the 1950's in an mp4 format encoded at 2500kbps video and audio at 128kbs in stereo and displayed in glorious 480p.

Spanning the years 1950 to 1959 this collection of trailers showcases the Golden Age of Science Fiction in the Cinema of North America and Europe. These films include core elements of science fiction, but can cross into other genres. They have been released to a cinema audience by the commercial film industry and are widely distributed with reviews by reputable critics.

This period is sometimes described as the 'classic' era of science fiction theater. Much of the production was in a low-budget form targeted at a teenage audience. Many were formulaic, gimmicky, comic-book style films. They drew upon political themes or public concerns of the day, including depersonalization, infiltration, or fear of nuclear weapons. Invasion was a common theme, as were various threats to humanity.[1]

Two of the films from this decade, The War of the Worlds (1953) and 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea (1954) won Academy Awards, while Destination Moon (1950) and The Incredible Shrinking Man (1957) won Hugo Awards.

Sources used for this collection of trailers were Wikipedia, DVDs, You Tube, and the Internet. The equipment used in this endeavor is a heavily modified Dell Inspiron 3847 running an Intel® Core™ i5-4460 Processor, Intel® HD Graphics 4600, 12GB of DDR3 RAM, and a set of Klipsch ProMedia 2.1 THX Certified monitors.

Software used in this project was Cyber Link PowerDirector 12, AnyMP4 Video Converter, Adobe Audition 3.0 and Photoshop CS5.
